

FOUR CARD POKER

Four Card Poker is a game that rewards skill, patience and nerve. Similar to Three Card Poker but with one major difference. In Three Card Poker, the play wager must equal the ante; in Four Card Poker, players may bet up to three times the ante when staying in the game.

Four Card Poker is played with standard 52-card deck. Five cards are distributed to each player by the dealer from an automatic shuffling machine. The dealer then deals themselves six cards with the top card face up.

HOW TO PLAY FOUR CARD POKER

To begin a round, the player places a wager on the ante and/or the Aces Up bet. The ante wager indicates the player wants to compare their hand against the dealer's, and the Aces Up bet is a wager that the player will have Pair of Aces or better.

Players use their best four of five the cards dealt, whereas the dealer uses the best four of six cards dealt. Players only play against the dealer, not any of the other players at the table.

After being dealt a hand you can either fold (forfeit) your hand and ante wager, or continue playing by placing a play wager in an amount at least equal to the ante and up to three times the ante. If the player folds, the hand is over and the dealer collects the player's ante wager and the Aces Up bet.

The ante and play bets win 1 to 1. The player wins ties. Players who place an ante wager and play wager are eligible to win an automatic bonus payout.
